The drawing consists of two parts. The upper part is a cross-sectional view of a mechanical assembly, showing a central vertical shaft or piston rod passing through a housing. The housing has a complex internal structure with various chambers and passages. The lower part is a side view of the same assembly, showing its overall profile and the arrangement of its components. The drawing is a technical illustration, likely for a patent or engineering document.

A black, rectangular, portable toilet unit. It has a large black cap on top with a circular opening. A white label is affixed to the front of the cap, featuring a logo and text including "Model 100-1000" and "100-1000". A discharge pipe with a black cap is located at the bottom front of the unit.

A white plastic water filter housing with a black top cap. The cap has a central threaded port and two side ports. The housing has several small, clear plastic feet or ports at the bottom.

Product characteristics

PAO-Oil 68 is not hygroscopic, i.e. unlike other oils it does not absorb moisture from the ambient air.

It can be used as an alternative to the various PAG oils that are offered for R134a. As a result, you only need to stock one type of oil, instead of three different PAG oils.

PAO Oil 68 helps to improve the improved performance of the air conditioning system.

The oil is available without (PAO Oil 68) or with added contrast agent (PAO Oil 68 Plus UV)

PAO Oil 68

The molecules of the PAO Oil 68 adhere to all surfaces in the system, force out other molecules and remain as a thin layer on the surface of the system components.

Due to the fact that the molecules do not try to connect to each other, this oil layer is just one molecule "thick". Unlike many other oils, there is therefore no risk of oil collecting in the evaporator and the associated deterioration in cooling performance when PAO Oil 68 is used.

Due to the fact that PAO Oil 68 only slightly connects to the refrigerant, only a small part of the oil circulates through the system. The rest stays where the oil is actually needed – in the compressor.

An oil film in the components improves the seal and/ or reduces the friction between the moving parts in the compressor. This reduces the operating temperature and the wear. This plays an important role in the operating safety and reduction of noise and also ensures lower run-times and less energy consumption by the compressor.

PAO Oil 68 Plus UV

PAO Oil 68 Plus UV has the same advantageous properties as PAO Oil 68.

It is additionally enhanced with a concentrated, highly effective contrast agent that is used for UV leak detection.

The advantage of the low Vol %-concentration of the contrast agent is that all the properties of the oil are retained and there are no negative effects on system components or service units whatsoever.

To achieve a sufficient effect during troubleshooting, only 10 Vol % of the system oil quantity are quite adequate. This corresponds e.g. to only 18 ml PAO Oil 68 Plus UV when the total system oil quantity is 180 ml.

In addition, PAO Oil 68 Plus UV can also be used for filling the whole system without there being any negative effects.
